You may be the owner of a valuable piece of porcelain or pottery, but the cryptic symbol on the underside of the piece may be your only clue to its value. Kovels' New Dictionary of Marks will help you identify your pieces.

Kovels' New Dictionary of Marks provides the quickest, easiest way to identify more than 3,500 American, European, and Oriental marks. The perfect companion to Kovels' original best seller, The Dictionary of Marks — Pottery and Porcelain (still in print after more than 30 years), Kovels' New Dictionary of Marks is the most comprehensive reference for nineteenth- and twentieth-century marks. (The original dictionary remains the definitive authority on seventeenth-, eighteenth-, and nineteenth-century marks.)

Kovels' New Dictionary of Marks is arranged according to symbol (anchor, birds, crown) and alphabetically according to name (Delft, Sèvres). The new easy-to-read format makes identification a breeze: If the symbol on the piece is a shield, turn to the "shield" section and leaf through until you've found your mark; if the mark is a name, simply check it in the alphabetical section.

Each mark is illustrated and accompanied with all relevant information: factory, city and country of origin; material used; color of mark; date mark was used; and name of current company (which may have changed since the piece was made). The book provides supplementary

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We have really been writing this book for more than thirty years. Ever since July 7, 1953, the day we saw our first copy of our first book, we have been keeping records of marks. Unfortunately we cannot thank the thousands of our readers who have added to our files of information through all those years. Rather, the thanks are to those who helped us clear up mysteries during the last two years. Many companies sent information and we thank all of them by including correct entries in the book. Some companies spent hours checking out minor problems. This list includes Arklow Pottery, Chessell Pottery, Franciscan Ceramics, Haas Group, Keystone Pottery, Mayer China Co., Myott-Meakin (1982) Ltd., Noritake Co. Ltd., Pfaltzgraff Pottery, Rosenthal Glass & Porcelain AG, Royal Doulton Tableware Ltd., Royal Worcester Spode Ltd., Shenango China Co., Wedgwood Group, and West Highland Pottery. Many librarians helped and we thank all of them. Jackie Anderson of the Jenkintown Public Library spent days researching one missing company in her area and to her, as the representative of all hardworking librarians, we say a special thanks.

You have to work on a project like this to understand the trivial problems that can take days of research, and patient rechecking of facts. Our staff, including Harriet Goldner, Gay Hunter, Nancy Saada, Carol Chin, Janet London, Sandy Brady, and all the others, including Mike, Eleanor, John, Grace, Edie, Beth, Randy, and Debbie, helped make this book possible and accurate. Crown Publishers' experts, including Pamela Thomas, Milt Wackerow, and Ann Cahn, made it look even better. We thank all of them.

Research always builds on earlier research and this book would not have been possible without the help of the many authors who preceded us. A full bibliography is included at the back of the book so you, too, can learn from these talented authors.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK: AN INTRODUCTION

Dictionary of Marks—Pottery and Porcelain, published in 1953, was our first book. It listed the marks, or backstamps, on ceramics by the shape of the mark, not by country, maker, or by many of the other ways that were available at the time. The book has been reprinted more than forty times and has been popular with collectors and museum researchers for thirty years. It is still in print and is available at most libraries and bookstores. The book has a special place in our lives because it was our first book and the start of our writing career. Now, forty-two books later, we have decided to write this sequel to our Dictionary of Marks. We have been gathering information and marks and filing them away for years.

Collectors today are interested in many types of pottery and porcelain. Some of the most popular collectibles were made during the 1950s, after our first book was written and published. This book is not a revision but a companion to Dictionary of Marks. About 10 percent of the marks in the new book appeared in the old book. That is because either we located more information, or the subject was of such interest that its omission would have been obvious, or because the marks were part of a company history and were needed to keep the dating information clear.

The first section of the book is a listing of marks that look like objects or designs, such as crowns, shields, birds, etc. The second section is an alphabetical list of marks that are initials and/or words. The arrangement of marks in each section is a bit capricious; we basically arranged them from simple to complex. We also assumed that the mark on your dish might be blurred, so we occasionally placed a mark by the outline, not by the letters of the name. We then made the index as complete as possible to give you clues about marks with words or symbols that may appear in a different section.

Each mark appears in a rectangle with a letter code, and is indexed by page number and by code letter. With each mark is the name of the factory, location, type of ceramic, how the mark was applied, date of mark. Sometimes we added the dates of the factory, current name of successor company, and occasionally the special name of the mark used by American collectors. We had many problems with the company names. Obviously, the original name of a German company was in German. When translated, several possible forms could have been used. In some cases, we did a comfortable translation. If the initials in the mark were directly connected to the foreign name, we may have used a more awkward translation. In a few cases we felt it was best to keep the foreign title.

The problem of dating a mark was relatively simple. We use "1895–1900" to mean the mark may have been used during those years. If we used a date such as "1895+," we were not positive how long after 1895 the mark was in use. "Ca.1895" means we are only suggesting a general time period, and the date could have been used at any time during the years on either side of 1895.

The factory dates proved more difficult. Most of the time they are from the first year that any predecessor company worked until the last year any successor company worked, provided that the name or management was continuous. Two companies frequently merged into one and the mark was used for the new company. We then dated it back to the oldest company with a direct relationship to the mark. For example, the mythical company of "Ralph Ltd." was founded in 1820. This company bought "Terry and Son," a company started in 1840. If the new firm took the name "Great Pottery, Inc.," it would then be listed as dating from 1820. If "Terry and Son" had bought "Ralph Ltd.," the new company would be dated from 1840. The information was often sketchy and sometimes conflicting, so we often had to use our best judgment. The successor company, if it is still in business, is listed at the bottom of the mark caption.

The marks were chosen primarily so the book would be useful to the average collector. The majority of marks date after 1850. Some are current marks. (It may be disappointing, but it is important to know you do not own an antique.) Most of the marks listed are from the United States, England, Germany, and France. Some factories are represented by many marks because each one gives dating information. Some firms have only a single mark that was in use for many years.

We had so many special problems to untangle with dating marks, tracing factory histories, etc., that we decided to add a few special sections at the back of the book to help you. One section, "The Vocabulary of Marks," lists words that appear in marks that will help to date the mark. Another section shows some of the factory "family trees" we were able to trace. Still another lists all the marks we found that incorporated systemized dating backstamps.

Last, but not least, is the Selected Reading. In most cases, the title of the book indicates the content, but if not we have included a comment to help. These books, as well as actual ceramic pieces, clippings, interviews, and correspondence, were the main sources of our information. We list only 3,500 of the 20,000 marks that we were able to find in doing our research; the others probably appear in these books.

We welcome any corrections or comments. It is doubtful that we will revise this book thirty years from now, but we will keep the notes for future researchers.

SOME ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

THE VOCABULARY OF MARKS

This is a list of words and symbols that are often found in backstamps. The dates given are guides, based on our observations of marks, or are the dates of events that created the terms or symbols. This is useful only to indicate the earliest date a term may appear; it does not tell how recently it may have been used.

COUNTRY NAMES

The McKinley Tariff Act of 1891 required that the name of the country where the ceramic was originally made must be printed on each piece. Sometimes country names were used as part of the mark before 1891; here are the dates of the earliest marks we have seen using the country name as part of the mark:

| | |
|---|---|
| China | ca.1900 |
| Czechoslovakia | 1918 |
| Danmark (Danish for Denmark) | ca.1850 |
| Denmark | ca.1890 |
| England | 1880 |

WORDS FOUND IN MARKS

bone china—20th century
The English name for a special type of ceramic developed about 1800. The words "bone china" do not appear as part of a mark until about 1915.

©—1914–present
The copyright symbol used in the United States, indicating that a work has been registered with the U.S. Copyright Office. The earliest we have seen a © mark used is 1914.

cooking ware—ca.1923–present
A ceramic container that is suitable to use while cooking food. It can withstand oven temperatures and is appropriately shaped.

copyright—after 1858 to present, usually 20th century
The design or name or material is registered under the United States copyright laws. The earliest we have seen the whole word used is 1892.

copyright reserved—after 1876
A legal term used on English wares.

craze proof—ca.1960–1970
The glaze will not develop fine lines or cracks with normal wear.

Delft—If the word "delft" appears, the pottery probably dates from the 19th or 20th century
A tin-glazed earthenware, often blue and white, but other colors were also used.

Déposé—ca.1900
Déposé is the French word for "registered."

designed expressly for—ca.1927–present
Factories sometimes made special patterns for use by one special customer. These were often marked with the customer's name as well as the factory name.

detergent proof—ca.1944–present
The design will not wash off if dishwashing detergent is used.

dishwasher proof—after 1955
The dishes can safely be washed in a dishwasher. The heat of the water will not injure the decoration or ceramic.

East Germany—1949–1990
Germany was divided into four occupation zones after World War II, from 1945 to 1949. The Russian zone became the German Democratic Republic, or East Germany. In 1990, Germany was reunified.

fast color—ca.1960
The decorations will not fade.

freezer-oven-table—1960s and after
The dish can be put in the freezer, then directly into an oven until the contents are cooked, then used for table service.

Gesetzlich Geschützt (Ges. Gesch.)—after 1899
These are the German words for legally patented or registered.

handmade—ca.1962
The dishes are at least partially made by hand, not molded by machine.

hand-painted—England and the United States about 1935
The design is painted directly on the dish by an artist. Each dish is therefore slightly different. Hand-painted china was popular in the 1880–1910 period, when it was made by many women at home as a hobby. The words "hand-painted" as part of a mark were used in the 20th century.

incorporated—ca.1940
A legal designation for the formation of a corporation in the United States.

Limited (Ltd.)—after 1861
Part of English firm name that has a specific legal meaning concerning the formation of the company.

made expressly for, made exclusively for—ca.1927–present
A factory made the dishes with a special design used by one customer.

Made in—1887 and after
English law required imported wares to be marked with these words and the country name.

Made in Occupied Japan—1945–1952
The Allies occupied Japan after World War II and these words were used on exported goods.

microwave safe—after 1970
The ceramic is suitable for a microwave oven.

National Brotherhood of Operative Potters—1940–1955
United States Potters Union members were employed at the factory.

Nippon—1891–1921 as a country name, sometimes after 1891 as part of a company name
It is the Japanese name for Japan.

NRA and eagle symbol—1933–1936
The National Recovery Administration, United States, created by the National Industrial Recovery Act of 1933, helped to create jobs. The symbol was used on products the NRA supported.

oven proof—after 1933
The ceramic can be used for baking in an oven.

oven tested—ca.1935
The ceramic has been tested and is safe for use in an oven.

oven-to-table—1978–present
A ceramic designed to be used in the oven and as a serving dish.

patent applied for—1902–present
A patent application has been filed with the United States Patent Office.

patent pending—1940–present
A patent has been applied for in the United States but not yet granted.

patented—1900–current
A patent has been granted by the United States Patent Office.

permanent colours—ca.1960
Term used on English wares.

published by—ca.1830–1840
This term refers to the Sculpture Copyright Act of 1797 (amended in 1814) in England.

®—1949–present
This symbol is used to designate a legally registered design in the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Trademark registration began in 1881.

refrigerator ware—ca.1938–1952
These words were often stamped on sets of ice water pitchers and containers made for refrigerators and sold as part of the original equipment.

Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.—ca.1932–present
Registered United States Patent Office.

Reg., Rd, Registered, with a number—1884–present
The English designation that indicates a design or process has been registered. See page 239.

Registry mark, diamond shaped—1842–1883
The English designation that indicates a design or process has been registered. See page 238.

Royal—after 1850 (Royal Crown Derby, 1876; Royal Doulton, 1902; Royal Worcester, 1862)
The word "Royal" was used as part of many English marks.

semi-vitreous (s-v)—after 1901
A type of heavy ceramic popular for dinnerware.

trademark—after 1862, usually after 1875
This word was used on English pieces after the Trademark Act of 1862, used on United States wares after 1875.

22 carat—term used after 1930s
The gold trim is real, 22 carat gold.

underglaze—ca.1903–1945
The design is applied under the glaze.

Union Label—1930s
The dish was made by a factory in the United States with a unionized work force.

union made—1930s
A term used in the United States; dishes made by a company with union employees.

USPA approved glaze—1975
The United States Potters Association approved the glaze for safety, durability, etc.

U.S. patent—after 1900
The design or method is patented in the United States. This term may appear on wares made outside the United States also.

U.S. Zone, U.S. Zone Germany—1945–1949
The name of the United States–occupied section of Germany after World War II.

USSR—(?)–1991

warranted—1890s, 1920s
There are three different uses of the term "warranted." In the United States it appears with the factory marks as a description of the company in the 1890s. It is part of the term "warranted 22 karat gold," meaning guaranteed to be real gold, in the 1920s. It appears as part of a company name on English wares in the 1890s.

West Germany—1949–1990
At the end of World War II, Germany was divided into occupation zones. The United States, Britain, and France occupied these zones from 1945 to 1949. Then the three zones became the Federal Republic of Germany, or West Germany. In 1990, Germany was reunified.

DATING SYSTEMS USED BY SPECIFIC FACTORIES

Dating systems were systems of numbers or symbols used by some factories to record the month and/or year a piece of pottery or porcelain was manufactured. Although not all factories employed such systems, many of the larger firms did, and we have included most of them here.

Much of the material contained in this book was obtained directly from the factory or manufacturer but in some cases we were obliged to turn to other sources. With the Russian system, we, of course, found it impossible to check with the existing factory to confirm our findings. With regard to other companies, even the factory records themselves were unclear, and thus we received conflicting information. Despite this, we have included information that each factory felt was most accurate.

In Selected Reading we have supplied a list of all the books and pamphlets we consulted for our research. If you wish to research the dating of a piece further, write directly to the manufacturer of your piece, or consult one of the books listed in our bibliography.

DOULTON & COMPANY

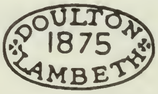
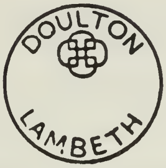
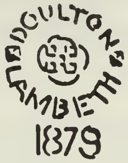
DOULTON & CO.
Burslem, Staffordshire, England
1853–present
(Royal Doulton Tableware Ltd.)



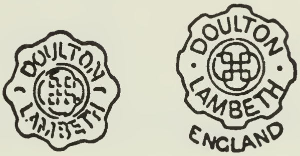
Impressed. Date added between 1872 and 1877; sometimes added between 1877 and 1887. Also a circular variation.



ca.1873–ca.1914 date was sometimes added in the center of this impressed or printed mark.

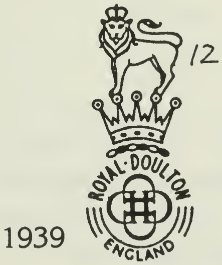


Impressed on Doulton Ware and some Lambeth faience ca.1876–1880.



Impressed or printed on Doulton Ware ca.1880–1902 (England added after 1891). Occasionally the date was added.

From 1913 to the 1930s, an impressed date-number system was used to indicate when the mold was made. The first numerals are the day, next the month, then the year. So, 4–3–29 means the fourth of March 1929. If two numbers were used, it indicates month and year. So, 10–27 means October 1927. This date number system was used with a variety of Royal Doulton backstamps.



Occasionally, after 1927, a printed number can be found to the right of the crown. Add 1927 to the number and it will give the date of manufacture. Thus, if you see "12" on the mark, add 1927 and you will see that the piece was made in 1939.

This material is based on information from The Kovels' Illustrated Price Guide to Royal Doulton, 2nd Edition, by Ralph and Terry Kovel (New York: Crown Publishers, Inc., 1984), and The Doulton Lambeth Wares by Desmond Eyles (Hutchinson Publishing Group Ltd., London, 1975).

ENGLISH REGISTRY MARKS

English registry marks are perhaps the most comprehensive and useful marks for dating any piece of English pottery and porcelain. Since 1842, English decorative art designs (including wood, glass, metal, and ceramic designs) were registered at the British patent office, but not every registered piece is marked.

To obtain more detailed information, write to one of the following addresses:

For pieces registered before 1909
Public Record Office
Ruskin Avenue
Kew, Richmond
Surrey, England

For pieces registered after 1909
Designs Registry
Patent Office
Chancery Lane
London WC2A 1LR England

The Public Record Office or Patent Office may charge a small fee.

Here are some notes to help date any piece that bears an English registry mark.

A diamond-shaped registry mark was used between 1842 and 1883. The information within the diamond changed after 1867.

Mark "A" represents the mark used between 1842 and 1867; mark "B" represents the mark between 1868 and 1883. After 1884, the diamond-shaped marks were replaced by the letters Rd. No. (for registry number) — and numbers indicating the year the piece was registered (see Mark "C").

In Mark "A," the various letters and numbers indicate the following: the large "Rd" means "registered"; the Roman numeral in the circle at the top of the mark represents the type of material of which the piece is made (see Table 1); the Roman numeral in the top inside section of the diamond represents the year the piece was registered (see Table 3); the Arabic numeral on the right-hand section represents the day of the month the piece was registered; the Arabic numeral in the section at the bottom represents the parcel number, which is a code indicating the person or company who registered the piece; and the letter in the left-hand section represents the month the piece was registered (see Table 2). In other words, Mark "A" appeared on a piece of ceramics registered on June 2, 1850.

In Mark "B," the various letters and numbers reflect the following: the large "Rd" means "registered"; the Roman numeral in the circle at the top of the mark represents the type of material from which the piece was made (see Table 1); the Arabic numeral in the top inside section of the diamond represents the day of the month; the letter at the right-hand section represents the year the piece was registered (see Table 4); the letter in the bottom segment represents the month the piece was registered (see Table 2); and the Arabic numeral at the left-hand side represents the parcel number. In other words, this mark appeared on a piece of ceramics registered on July 7, 1873.

After 1883, the diamond marks were discontinued and a simpler marking system, consisting of the letters "Rd No" followed by a number, was instituted. This mark appears on decorative art (china, glass, metal, or wood) manufactured in England since 1884.

Table 5: Design Registry Numbers—1884–1981 lists the English registry numbers by year. (For example, if a piece is marked with the number Rd. No. 821265, it was registered sometime in 1937.)

VAN BRIGGLE POTTERY

VAN BRIGGLE POTTERY
Colorado Springs, CO, U.S.A.
ca.1901–present

From 1900 to 1920, many pieces were dated with the four digits of the year.

WEDGWOOD

WEDGWOOD
Burslem, Barlaston, & Etruria, England
ca.1759–present
(Wedgwood Group)

Each piece of Wedgwood is marked with a backstamp. From 1860 to 1906, three capital letters were impressed—the first representing the month the piece was manufactured, the second the potter, and the third the year the piece was made. Thus, according to the dating system below, since cycle numbers are not part of the stamp, a stamp with the letters "LBS" could mean July 1864 or July 1890.

In 1907 the month code system was changed to a "3" or "4" for every month. Therefore, a backstamp of "3B S" indicates that a piece was manufactured in 1916.

After 1930, the month of manufacture was indicated by a number between 1 and 12 corresponding to the months of the year, the potter by a letter, and the year by two digits. Thus, a mark "6 P 50" means the piece was manufactured in June 1950.

English registry marks are also used (see page 238).

WORCESTER

WORCESTER
Worcester, England
1751–present
(Royal Worcester Spode Ltd.)

This table shows the date letter system used by Worcester since 1867. From 1867 to 1890, a letter was impressed below the mark; sometimes two numbers, representing the last two digits of the year, were used. Beginning in 1891, the words "Royal Worcester England" were written around the mark, but no letter was used in that year.

In 1892 a dot system was instituted and it became more elaborate over the years. In 1916 an asterisk was printed together with the dots; thus a piece of porcelain with just an asterisk was manufactured in 1916. From then on various symbols were used together with the dots to indicate the year of manufacture. (See chart.)

After 1956, transfer printed patterns (designs taken from old engraving plates) were marked with a "W" and new designs were marked with an "R." The dot system continued together with the letters "W" or "R" until 1963. After 1963, new patterns were marked with the four digits of the current year while patterns taken from old engravings continued to be marked with the "W" and dot system. After 1970, a circle was put around a dot for each subsequent year; thus a "W" together with twenty dots with two rings indicates 1972.

ADDITIONAL TIPS FOR DATING POTTERY AND PORCELAIN

Here are some clues that help determine the age of a piece. To begin, study the shape of a mark printed on the bottom. The unicorn and lion, the shield mark, the knot, and the garter were all English marks that were popular from about 1806 to the present time. American makers liked to copy these marks and they used them at about the same time. Sometimes, American manufacturers changed the mark a little and used two lions or two unicorns.

If the name of a pattern of dish appears, such as Asiatic Pheasants, it was made after 1810. Elaborate scrolls, etc., were popular from 1820 to 1860.

Rectangular marks with heavy line initials were favored by the Wiener Werkstatte and other art pottery movements from 1900 to 1932; the design was copied by others. The "squared circle"—or perhaps it should be called the "round cornered square"—was a shape of mark favored during the 1950s and 1960s, when it was used by Edwin M. Knowles, Gladding, McBean, and others.

To some extent the prevailing school of design influenced the shape of the mark, so that the Oriental-looking marks with Chinese mandarins or pagodas often date from the Japonisme ideas of the 1880s, the very severe rectangular marks from the 1920s Art Deco period.

Although it was not uncommon for an artist to sign a piece with initials or even a name in the nineteenth century, the name was not a part of the factory mark until the twentieth century. Susie Cooper, Eva Zeisel, Russel Wright, Rockwell Kent, and others are names that denote the designer and the pattern. They are part of the company mark used as backstamps.

DATE YOUR DISHES FROM THE TOP

There are some design clues that can help date a dish. Colors moved in and out of fashion. There was a limited palette during the eighteenth century. Flow blue was popular from 1830 to the early 1900s and a gold sponged edging came into use with the blue by the late 1800s. Violets were popular flowers about 1910, then roses followed. Fish sets were the rage about 1910, portrait plates in the 1880s, and plain gold bands on white dishes became popular about 1876. The first calendar plate was made in the United States in 1906, although a few earlier English examples can be found. The first Christmas plate was made in Denmark in 1895. Kewpie dolls were introduced in 1912, Palmer Cox brownies in 1892.

POTTERY AND PORCELAIN "FAMILY TREES"

The making of ceramics has been a family business since the seventeenth century. Factories were passed from father to son, even to daughter, widow, or in-laws. With each change of management there was usually a change of name. In the twentieth century the ceramic industry went through a series of acquisitions and mergers. Often the old marks and names were kept and used by the new companies. Sometimes a ceramic factory in a specific location was sold to a series of firms. The name of the location of the kiln was used in old books and even today some companies refer to a branch in a specific city by the city name. All of this has led to confusion for the collector. While working on this book we had to trace the family trees of some of the major companies that are still making ceramics. Those lists are included here. Notice how the names are repeated for several generations.

The marks used by these companies are listed in the proper place in the main parts of this book. The name in parentheses at the bottom of the information about the mark refers to the present-day company that should have all the past history of the firm. We have been dismayed by the lack of record keeping. Often a new owner simply destroyed all the old records. One company was sold while we were tracing a family tree. By the time we had reached the new owners, a matter of a few weeks, the records were gone and we found our answers only through interviews with ex-employees, the local historical society, and the local library.

THE HAVILAND FAMILY

DAVID
(1814–1879)
Founded D. G. and D. Haviland with his brother, Daniel, in 1838; formed Haviland Brothers & Co. with all of his brothers in 1852. In 1864 that company was dissolved and he formed Haviland & Co. with his sons. After his death, his sons continued the business until 1892 when the partnership was dissolved.

DANIEL

RICHARD

ROBERT BARCLAY
(born 1803)
Formed a company with his sons and Churchman in 1865.

THEODORE
(c.1842–1919)
Built his own factory in 1892 and formed Theodore Haviland & Co. (La Porcelaine Theodore Haviland).

WILLIAM DAVID
Took over the operation of the Limoges firm in 1919. Began making china in the U.S. as well in 1936. Bought all marks, models, and rights from Haviland & Co. in 1941, thus reuniting the company, under the name Haviland S.A. Today about 80% of this company's porcelain is made in Limoges. Older patterns may be marked Theodore Haviland, France, or Theodore Haviland, New York, depending on where they were made. Patterns introduced in the last 20 or 30 years are marked Haviland Limoges France.

THEODORE II — FREDERICK

HAROLD — CHRISTOPHER

CHARLES EDWARD
(c.1839–1921)
After the split in 1892, he operated under the name Haviland & Co. The company was bought by Maison GDA in 1931.

GEORGES

FRANK

JOHN
Set up a factory of his own in Bavaria, Germany, in 1907, under the name Johann Haviland. In 1924 he sold the factory and the rights to the name. It is now owned by Waldershof Porzellanfabrik A.G., controlled by Philip Rosenthal.

FREDERICK

CHARLES FIELD
(1832–1896)
Worked at Limoges with his uncle David in 1852; began a competing porcelain decorating business at Limoges with his uncle Richard in 1859; formed a new company with his father in 1865; founded Charles Field Haviland & Co. in 1870; took control of the Alluaud factory in 1876. In 1881 the firm became GDM (Gerard, Dufraisseix & Morel) and later GDA (Gerard, Dufraisseix & Abbott).

ANDRÉ

ROBERT
(born 1898)
Started his own factory in 1924. Bought rights to the Charles Field Haviland mark in 1941. The factory still operates under the name Robert Haviland & C. Parlon.

MARKS USED BY MANY FACTORIES

Some symbols are more salable than others when used as part of a backstamp or trademark. In England, the Royal Arms symbols were used by many factories. In the United States, there were symbols that were similar to the English marks but more salable in the United States market. All of these marks are shown in the appropriate section of the book.

Below are three marks commonly used by many manufacturers together with a list of the names of some of the factories that used them. Most of the factories also included the company name or initials with the mark. Dates indicate the years the marks may have been used.

BRITISH ROYAL ARMS

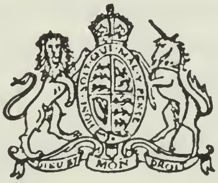
Many companies in England, the United States, and Europe used the British Royal Arms or a close version as a backstamp. The arms included an oval central area with a lion on one side and a unicorn on the other. The oval shield was divided into quadrants after 1837. Before that time the shield had an extra oval or shield-shaped design in the center. From 1801 to 1814 the mark included a cap over the shield. From 1814 to 1837 the cap was changed to a crown. The marks used outside England often made minor changes. Many firms used two lions or two unicorns at the side of the oval. Some firms used human figures, birds, or other types of animals. Because the wares from England were considered the best available, it was good business to try to look British. Designs, shapes, and even the marks were deliberately misleading. A small printed mark, often blurred, could easily be misread.

The Royal Arms mark was so popular it was used by dozens of factories and it is impossible to give an all-inclusive listing here.



HONI SOIT QUI MAL Y PENSE
MON

KNOT OR STAFFORDSHIRE KNOT

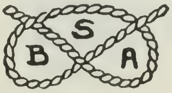
A pretzel-shaped mark that was really a representation of a knotted rope was used by many English makers. Often the maker's initials were included as part of the mark. Makers who used this mark include:



H. Aynsley & Co. (Ltd.), Longton, England (1873–1932)
Bodley & Co., Burslem, England (1865)
Edward F. Bodley & Son (New Bridge Pottery), Burslem, England (1883–1898)
George Frederick Bowers & Co., Tunstall, England (1842–1868)
E. Brain & Co. Ltd., Fenton, England (1903–1964 + )
William Brownfield & Sons, Cobridge, England (1850–1891)
Burslem School of Art, Burslem, England (1935–1941)
Hanley Porcelain Co., Hanley, England (1892–1899)

Arthur J. Mountford, Burslem, England (1897–1901)
New Wharf Pottery, Burslem, England (1878–1894)
George Phillips, Longport, England (1834–1848)
Ridgway, Sparks & Ridgway, Hanley, England (1873–1879)
Salt & Nixon Ltd., Longton, England (1901–1934)
Smith & Binnall, Tunstall, England (1879–1900)
Wellington Pottery Co., Hanley, England (1899–1901)
Wilkinson & Wardle, Yorkshire, England (1864–1866)
H. J. Wood Ltd., Burslem, England (1884–1964 + )
W. Wood & Co., Burslem, England (1873–1932)

COMBINED SHIELD MARK USED BY BOTH UNITED STATES AND ENGLISH FIRMS

A strange mark combining the shields of the United States and England was used in the late nineteenth century by both English and American firms. It seems to have been used as part of a joint marketing arrangement. Some firms using this mark are listed here:

Edward Clarks & Co., Burslem, England (ca.1865–1887)
International Pottery Co., Trenton, NJ, U.S.A. (1860–1936)
Mercer Pottery Co., Trenton, NJ, U.S.A. (1868–ca.1937)
New York City Pottery, New York, NY, U.S.A. (1853–1888)
John Wyllie & Son, East Liverpool, OH, U.S.A. (1874–1891)

FAKES AND FORGERIES

If your dish is marked with any of the following marks, you may or may not have a piece with a forged mark. The marks we have included here are ones most often faked on new ceramics. Because the original marks and the later copies are hand-painted, each mark can vary slightly and be of little help in determining the age of the porcelain. All of these marks are listed in the correct section of this book, but beware. Even if your mark looks the same, it may be a copy. The most often forged nineteenth-century marks are the beehive, crossed swords, Augustus Rex mark, crown and N mark, and Sèvres date mark. These are explained here and also included in the main section of the book.

BEEHIVE OR BEEHIVE VIENNA MARK

The Imperial and Royal Porcelain Manufactory of Vienna used a version of the beehive mark from 1744 to 1864. The mark was an adaptation of the center of the coat-of-arms of the Hapsburg family. The hand-painted blue mark was often read upside down and became known as a "beehive." Many firms used variations of the mark, when deliberately trying to deceive the customer. Many small decorating firms added the blue beehive to other marks on a piece.

The original mark was almost always applied under the glaze; later copies were over the glaze. If you run a fingernail over the mark you can tell whether it is over or under the glaze. The original mark was always hand-painted and therefore slightly asymmetrical. If the mark appears to be printed, it is a later copy. If the mark appears with other printing and is positioned so that it resembles the beehive, it is a later copy.

Factories using a variation of the beehive mark include:

Ackerman & Fritze, Volkstedt, Germany (1908–present)
Phillip Aigner, Vienna, Austria (ca.1900)
Bourdois & Bloch, Paris, France (ca.1900)
Carl Knoll, Fischern, Bohemia (Rybare, Czechoslovakia) (1848–1945)

Langewiesen Factory (Oscar Schlegelmilch), Langewiesen, Germany (1892–present)

Edmé Samson, Paris, France (1845–1905)

CROSSED SWORDS

The crossed swords mark was first used at the Royal Porcelain Manufactory in Meissen, Germany, from about 1725. Variations of this mark are still being used by the factory. It has been copied by many other companies. An extensive list of these factories and facsimiles of the marks can be found in The Book of Meissen by Robert Rontgen (Exton, PA: Schiffer Publishing, Ltd., 1984).

AUGUSTUS REX OR AR MARK

The Meissen Augustus Rex mark has been copied by many factories and decorators. Helene Wolfsohn of Dresden, Germany, used the mark until 1883, when the Royal Porcelain Manufactory in Meissen won a lawsuit that ordered Wolfsohn to stop. The AR mark was registered by the Meissen factory as a trademark in 1873 after it had been in use for many years. The mark is still being used.

CROWN WITH N MARK

The letter N with a crown above it was the mark used from 1771 to 1821 by the Capo-di-Monte factory in Naples, Italy. The company closed and many of the molds were purchased by the Ginori factory in Doccia, Italy, which had started working in 1713. The crowned N mark is still in use. The original mark was hand-painted both over and under the glaze. Some German, French, Italian, and other companies have also used copies of this mark.

SÈVRES DATE MARK

The scrolled cartouche was used with a letter to designate the date of a piece of porcelain from the Sèvres Manufactory at Sèvres, France, from 1753. It has been copied on porcelains from England, Germany, France, and the United States, as well as other small factories. See page 249 for a complete description of the original mark.

Kovels' New Dictionary of Marks is the standard reference book for identifying nineteenth- and twentieth-century porcelain and pottery.

© 1986 Erick Hansen 5000K

RALPH and TERRY KOVEL are America's leading antiques and collectibles experts. They have written more than 60 books on the subject. In addition, the Kovels write a nationally syndicated newspaper column and a monthly column for House Beautiful. They publish a monthly newsletter, "Kovels on Antiques and Collectibles."

Jacket photo by Studio Associates

The mark on the saucer, which appears on the front of the jacket, can be found on page 88N. It was used by Coalport Porcelain Works, Coalport, Shropshire, England, between ca. 1891 and ca. 1920. The name "Tiffany & Co., N.Y." refers to the store that sold the dishes.

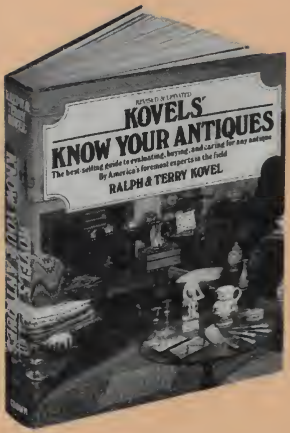
DICTIONARY of MARKS POTTERY and PORCELAIN
by Ralph M. and Terry H. Kovel

Dictionary of Marks—Pottery and Porcelain (1580-1880)

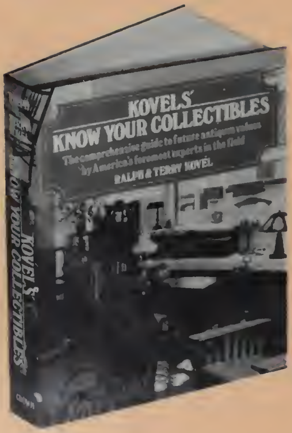
A classic in the field, the Dictionary of Marks is a comprehensive guide to more than 5,000 American and European pottery and porcelain marks. It shows at a glance the geographical location of the factory, family name or manufacturer's name, type of ware, color of mark, and date the mark was used.



REVISED & UPDATED
KOVELS' KNOW YOUR ANTIQUES
RALPH & TERRY KOVEL

Kovels' Know Your Antiques, Revised Third Edition

More than 300 photographs and drawings illustrate this perennial best seller, considered to be the best guide in print today for antiques collectors. Written especially for the novice, it contains information about recognizing and determining the value of virtually every type of antique, and provides bibliographies, price guides, clubs, and other information needed by every collector.



KOVELS' KNOW YOUR COLLECTIBLES
RALPH & TERRY KOVEL

Kovels' Know Your Collectibles

This up-to-date illustrated guide (more than 1,000 photographs and illustrations) focuses on today's most fascinating collecting trends: pottery, porcelain, silver, glass, furniture, toys, and other objects that are not old enough to be officially called "antiques" but nonetheless are rapidly increasing in value. It contains information about value, origin, availability, storage, and buying and selling, plus extensive bibliographies and charts.
